After many nice reactions to the previous seminar, we want to do it again. Of course we prefer to train in the dojo, but to train with karatekas all over the world is also wonderful. So let's do it again.

Who is Sensei Scott Langley 7th Dan

Sensei Scott Langley is a remarkable karateka. He has always shown enormous talent and with that baggage and enormous effort he ended up at the Honbu dojo of the JKS in Japan. There he completed the five-year grueling training to become a JKS instructor. (See his book "Karate Stupid".) That has given him a tremendous foundation for his formidable karate.

Scott has been chief instructor for Ireland and England at WTKO and is currently running his own fast-growing organization, the HDKI.

Scott teaches extremely inspiring. He is very technical and has a good sense of realistic and effective body use. He takes everyone, young or old, low or high, in his drive to a higher level.

His knowledge is enormous and his mastery of this beautiful martial art makes many Karate hearts beat faster. It is always a great experience to be taught by sensei Scott.

Who is Sensei Otto Bakker 7e Dan

Sensei Otto started with Karate 44 years ago after 3 years of doing Judo. Still passionate and with heart and soul in the martial art to support many people, young and old, mentally and physically. He does this with Karate but also in the form of self-defense lessons.

Otto is a dojo owner with ambition. With his own martial arts experience coupled with a piece of coaching, he gives his students the confidence that they can (and should!) get what is in it. Not only during the dojo training but also during courses. Which are accessible to everyone, fun and very educational. His classes are always well received, not least because of his passion and good dose of humor.

He is the engine, inspirer, Sensei and owner of this special dojo, where hard training at a high level and a good atmosphere actually coincide naturally. Quirky and persistent in the opinion that karate discipline and respect for each other go perfectly hand in hand.
